Dear Mr. Weisberg,

Thanks for yours of the 6th.

It seems a certain misunderstanding has come because those words I used "my present position" simply aren't precise enough.... can mean anything from the most slight and tenuous to a belief firmly held. Ina nutshell, I know I don't know much of anything first-hand about Bradley, and I haven't and don't intend to write anything about him in a paper or book manuscript. I do have ~~more~~ considerable faith in Roger Craig's powers of recognition. Also think false testimony can be put forward to discredit something true - whether or not it applies in this case. #What you say increases my doubts. But I continue to feel that the question is still unsettled. The Craigs have said some things on the matter which I don't think have come to your attention.

On the Loren Hall - Roger Craig said someone said this to him. My comment is that I think Hall's death itself says something .... it's not clear what but it's quite likely that he just knew too much.

Haven't heard yet from Black Star. Will let you know when - and if - they respond once again.

Agreed that correspondence must be limited.

With my compliments on your achievement and continuing work,

Sincerely,

Madeline Sudduth
